We have (had) a 2007 Saturn Vue. Yesterday on the way to work, a knocking sound started underneath the hood. Before we had time to pull over, the engine seized and blew. It appears that the clutch from the AC unit had come off and caused the engine to over heat that quickly (we just did an oil change on it 2 days ago and there was plenty of oil).

I went outside on a cold morning and attempted to crank my 2007 Saturn Vue. The engine would not start. I had it towed into a shop and was told that the timing chain snapped which caused engine failure. I took it to another shop for a second opinion and they said the same thing and that it would cost over $5,000 to repair it.
