Hey all, First post here. I've got a 97 Jetta Trek and the power windows were working fine the last time I drove the car. I got in this morning, though, and they were dead as doornails. No response from any of the switches. I've been playing with it all day trying to figure it out. My first thought was that it was a fuse, and according to the owner's manual, the power window fuse is a 20a ...
